NEW MASTERS OF THE BLITZ

Russian advances follow one another with rapidity that exceeds the startling blitz warfare waged by the Germans in 1941. The generals of the Red army are the new masters of the war of movement.

If their brilliance is heightened by the willingness of the enemy to retreat and his inability to make a stand anywhere in his haste to escape from a dilemma, the German generals who swept through France and lunged to their objectives with incredible speed beginning with the attack on Poland were similarly aided by the weakness of the opposition.

The speed of an advancing army is determined by more factors than the speed of the enemy retreating before it. There have been numerous occasions when the enemy disengaged himself successfully because of the slowness of the pursuit. Russia is missing no opportunities because of slowness. It is making the most of the privilege of cutting down the invaders of its soil in retreat; it has earned it.

Most richly of all, it has earned the triumph now in sight at Sevastopol, where the invaders will pay their last involuntary major tribute to the fighting ability of Russians in defense of their homeland. With recapture of the famous Black sea base, now that Odessa has been recovered, the German invasion of Russian territory will be at an end. The garrison there has nothing left to fight for; another long siege is unlikely.

HOW FAR IS ROME?

The proclamation by King Victor Emmanuel III that he will delegate his authority to Crown Prince Umberto when the Allies reach Rome is a political anti-climax. It does suggest preparation for some new development in the Italian campaign—a paving of the political way for an important military move. Under existing circumstances, with the drive on Rome stalled at Cassino and pinned down at the Anzio beachhead, Rome is still too far away to be made the key to any impending event.

King Victor rarely has been more than a monarchial symbol in Italy. On the few occasions when he has made a decision in his own right, however, he has shown unquestioned devotion to the welfare of Italy; his decision now to ease political tension by stepping aside in favor of his heir, who is more likely to rally general support, is in character. While the king's decision to accept Benito Mussolini at another troubled hour in Italian history looked bad by hindsight, historians concede that it represented the only choice left open under the revolutionary conditions prevailing after the first World war.

King Victor hoped to help Italy. Since he came to the throne in 1900 his intentions have been unimpeachable. It was Italy's misfortune that the intentions of so many of the political figures who surrounded him were stronger, but equally honorable; and that even their good intentions finally were distorted in an abortive scheme for the aggrandizement of Germany and Japan.

ADMINISTERING DEMOBILIZATION

Chief significance of the recommendations made by War Mobilization Director Byrnes for demobilization problems is the foreshadowing of a move to lay the groundwork for administrative action. Thus, Mr. Byrnes suggests to congress legislation to provide supplementary unemployment payments, over and above those now specified in existing unemployment legislation.

This would aim to do for civilians left stranded by demobilization what similar legislative proposals would do for service men. It would make the transition from war to peace production a direct federal responsibility, whose costs would be added to the cost of the war. Meanwhile, Mr. Byrnes warns that demobilization of some industrial operations already is under way and will be accelerated, particularly after Germany's collapse.

Net effect of the mobilization director's recommendations is a deepening of civilian puzzlement over government policy on manpower. Here is one official charged with responsibility for mobilization talking about demobilization and imminent need for extra unemployment compensation at the same time that other officials are talking about more intensive mobilization, even including a national service act. If Mr. Byrnes is trying to take a stitch in time, the others must be too late.

BYPRODUCTS

The April showers which have such a lovely sound in January, February and March, when they are something to look forward to, have many byproducts, in addition to May flowers. They bring on floods, swamped fields that keep farmers from doing their spring plowing, an epidemic of spring colds and a generally soggy condition which finally leaves even nature lovers convinced that almost anything would be better than April showers.

Then, one bright morning, the showers have stopped and April showers again make a lovely phrase. Everything is forgotten but the flowers and the promise of flowers. The floods subside, the fields dry out, the colds seem to be getting better and only the good things remain. An optimist can afford to be true to his convictions again, if only it doesn't rain again tomorrow.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, April 16

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows a most dramatic and exciting state of affairs, with all the emotional, romantic, creative and spiritual faculties and forces stimulated to probably spectacular denouements. There may be celebrations and festive occasions gratifying to the affectional, artistic or emotional aspirations, with subtle and peculiar aspects, not quite supported by superiors or elders.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of dramatic and thrilling adventures, in which there may be perplexing or complicated situations, running counter to the good will and substantial support of elders, superiors or those in influential positions, whose cooperation is required. With discretion and proper control of emotions there may be exceptional gains.

A child born on this day should have exceptional creative skills and talents, with much subtlety, sagacity and craft, although its strange ideals may not find approval from influential sources. It may be successful and adventurous.

For Monday, April 17

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is an adverse one, with dangers from misrepresentation, fraud, mistakes, and false moves which may put in jeopardy not only finances, credit and stability, but highly cherished objectives and ambitions. With thrift, prudence, vigilance and sagacity, there may be very promising prospects of promotion, appreciation and sound progress.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy many advantages and solid progress if they will keep alert to fraud, misrepresentation, distortion, and extravagance probably arising from careless writings or correspondence, agreements or financial obligations, imperiling worthwhile prospects. With discretion and precaution there may be promotion and strokes of good fortune. Sign all writings cautiously.

A child born on this day, while ambitious and talented, may suffer from imposition, fraud and suspicion, unless carefully directed. It may be luck and possibly have extravagant and careless proclivities.

HITS LATIN AMERICA SPENDING

COLUMBUS, April 15.—U. S. spending in Latin America is destroying the economy of many countries below the border, Dr. Claude A. Watson, presidential candidate of the national Prohibition party asserts.

Dr. Watson told the second annual meeting of the National Association of Evangelicals last night that needless expenditures of U. S. funds in South America slowly was undermining the federal economy of several nations. This type of spending, he said, is characteristic of the present administration's wasteful tendencies. He did not name the countries.

He said that in his presidential campaign, which has carried him through southern states and the west coast, he found a growing dislike for the New Deal and the administration in Washington.

The Prohibition party will be on the ballot in 40 or more states next fall, Dr. Watson declared, whereas in 1928 it was represented on the ballot in only eight states.

It is not important that the soldier conform to the family pattern, but he needs the sense of belonging to something stable that can serve as a safe anchorage for the time being and permit a certain amount of floating and drifting.—Dr. Alexander Reid Martin of New York.

Despite the fact that our mobilization has been twice as great during this war as in the last, the cost of living has risen less than half as much.—Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson.

The simple fact is that the Germans stopped us (at Cassino).—Secretary of War Stimson.

THE INSIDE STORY

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Crippling Diseases of Young Decline

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN LONDON long ago before the world had any experience of World Wars I used to attend clinics at the "Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick and Crippled Children." I remember I used to shy at the stark reality of the name, but in time I have come to admire

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

the clarity with which the English name their institutions.

In America it would be called the "Pediatric and Orthopedic hospital," and nine-tenths of those who had need of it would not know what either Pediatric or Orthopedic meant. But the most illiterate mother knew what a sick and crippled child was; and if he needed such an institution he recognized that was where he ought to go.

I wonder how the Great Ormond Street Hospital fares today. Modern preventive medicine has almost done away with crippled children and modern global politics with its wars has substituted crippled adults instead. The three great causes of crippling in children were rickets, tuberculosis of the bones and joints and infantile paralysis. Only infantile paralysis still operates with the same frequency.

Vitamin D Substances

The use of cod liver oil or other substances containing Vitamin D in the infant's feedings from the very first weeks of life, the happy habit of exposing babies to sunshine as much as possible has made rickets a rarity. And childhood tuberculosis has declined with all other forms of tuberculosis; milk inspection and the removal of tuberculosis cattle from dairy herds being the most powerful operative cause in the case of childhood tuberculosis, because so much of it was caused by the bovine type of tubercle germs.

Rickets was once the great spring disease of infancy. It is essentially a softening of the bones due to lack of the power in the bone growing cells to lay down calcium. Physicians wondered for long why calcium was not laid down in these cases because, as they pointed out, there is plenty of calcium in the milk babies get in abundance. Then early in this century it was found that the baby who had the substance we now call Vitamin D in order to fix the calcium in the growing bone. It was also found that sunshine acting on the skin produced Vitamin D which is carried to the liver and stored, hence the use of liver, especially fish liver oil, as a source of Vitamin D.

Sunshine in the open air is Nature's method of prevention of rickets. The reason the condition occurs in the spring with such great frequency is that at that time the lack of sun exposure during the short winter days shows up. Milk irradiated by rays from the carbon arc lamp, or milk from dairy cows fed with irradiated yeast, contains a full complement of Vitamin D and is just as good as cod liver oil.

Preventive Measures

These preventive measures have been so widely and so intelligently carried out in America that rickets is a comparatively rare disease. And happily so for its deformities of square skulls, knock knees, bow legs and twisted arms are not pleasant sights. Almost gone, though I have actually seen a case in sunny California.

Tuberculosis of the bones and joints in children has almost disappeared though not quite to the extent that rickets has. It attacks particularly the spine, hip and mucous membrane of the nose, as in an inhaler, it shrinks swelling of congested membrane and is therefore useful in sinus trouble.

Radio Programs

Broadcasts of home programs for Uncle Sam's fighters all over the world are being sent to them in various ways, but the method getting as much attention as anything else is the "V-disc."

Actually, the "V-disc" is a recording of an entire program, particularly a network show that the boys away from home have expressed a desire to hear.

So far, it is estimated that something like 2,000,000 records have been made since the plan got under way last October. A special plastic is used, making the records almost indestructible.

THE RED CARNATION by BURTON STEVENSON

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

Duffy strode back to the cabinet, took the doctor's keys from his pocket, found the one which fitted the lock and opened the central door. On a series of shelves inside were ranged perhaps a hundred round cardboard boxes about three inches in diameter and six or seven inches long. Some two dozen of them were on an upper shelf, and the rest of these bore a label on which was a name and a date.

These lower ones are blanks, I suppose, said Tony. "These labeled ones are where the dynamite is," and he picked up one of the boxes, took off the cover, and drew the wax cylinder half-way out. Then, with an exclamation of surprise, he drew it all the way out and looked at it closely.

"It's a blank, too!" he cried. "A blank? Duffy echoed. 'How can a blank be that?' " "He took the cylinder and held it to the light. There could be no doubt about it. Its surface was as smooth and polished as when it came from the factory.

"It has been reconditioned," Tony said, and strode over to the machine in the corner. "Look here," and Duffy saw at the bottom of the reconditioning compartment a pile of thin wax shavings. "Metcalfe must have done that tonight—put them in here one after the other, so that no incriminating confessions would be left behind. I must say, it makes me think more highly of him."

"Yes," Duffy nodded. "And it's also proof positive that he was getting ready to kill himself."

Tony went back to the cabinet and examined three or four more of the records. They were all blank. "It was quite a racket while it lasted," Duffy went on, as he looked at the cabinet. "I'll bet there's a woman in the woodpile somewhere. What are you frowning about? Aren't you satisfied yet? You don't think Metcalfe was murdered, do you?"

"I don't think anything—but I never cared much for confessions. Too many people confess things they never did."

"You seldom heard of anybody confessing a murder he never did," retorted Duffy. "But don't worry—we'll find some confirmation—we're bound to. We'll go over his rooms upstairs and put some heat on that Jap boy of his. He wasn't telling all he knew."

They had returned to the outer room and Tony picked up the flashlight little automatic.

"There may be something in your idea that there's a woman in the case, Jim," he said. "This certainly is a woman's gun—"

"Or a psychiatrist's," the detective added.

Tommy picked the pistol back on the desk and picked up the key which Duffy had found in Metcalfe's vest pocket.

"That's the key to his apartment," the detective remarked.

"I wonder why he didn't carry it in his key ring?" Tony said. "Look here, Jim. This apartment is 710. The number on this key is 708. That's the Graham apartment next door."

"Let's go," and Duffy led the way into the hall.

Apartment 708 was smaller than 80, 710, and 810, the only others which Tony had seen in this building, and was furnished less luxuriously, but it was still a very pleasant habitation. He walked straight to the windows looking down on McKibben's terrace, and in a moment he found what he was looking for. The point on the window sill nearest Metcalfe's apartment was rubbed and scored.

"There you are," said Tony. "That is the way he got down. You see it wasn't a rope, it was a ladder—there are two marks right across the sill. It was probably tied to this radiator under the window. If we could only find that ladder!"

"He wouldn't be such a fool as to keep it," grunted Duffy. "Is this where that fellow Graham lives?" "Yes. He has been in California for a month."

"And gave Metcalfe the key and asked him to look after the place while he was away?"

"I don't see why he should expect Metcalfe to bother, especially when the place is inspected twice a week by the superintendent. No, I think there is more to Metcalfe's having the key than that. Shall we look around a little?"

They didn't find anything, and finally left the place, locking the door after them, and returned to Metcalfe's office.

"Now we'll go upstairs," said Duffy. "Come along, Freeman," he added to the stenographer who had been waiting patiently until his services might be required, and led the way up the stairs to Metcalfe's living rooms.

They found the Jap houseboy seated in the kitchen. His face was drawn and sallow and seemed to have shrunk to half its usual size.

"What's the matter with you?" Duffy demanded. "What are you afraid of?"

"Not afraid of nothing," retorted the boy.

"Then what's the matter?" "Him very good to me," the boy explained, and his eyes were filled with misery.

Duffy paused for a moment. "Well, brace up," he said, not unkindly. "I've got to ask you some questions."

The boy followed along to the library, where the detective sat down again in the easy chair with the pile of papers beside it on the floor and motioned the stenographer to draw up another.

"Now tell me your name again," he began.

"Noguchi Kato, sir. Doctor call me Joe."

"Yes, I know. How long have you been with Metcalfe?"

"Four year, sir."

"Ever see a fellow named Jack McKibben up here?"

Joe shook his head. "No know," he said, and as Tony looked at him he saw that that was going to be the reply to every question which, for any reason, Joe preferred not to answer.

"Now I want you to think back to last Monday night," Duffy went on. "This is Thursday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday. Where was Metcalfe Monday night?"

"Him here. Him have dinner here."

"By himself?"

"Yes, sir," answered the boy stolidly.

"Seemed to be fond of dining by himself," the detective commented

ironically. "What did he do after dinner Monday night?"

"No know."

"Why don't you know?" Duffy barked.

"Monday night, my night off. Leave soon as I clear up kitchen."

"And you didn't get back till when?"

"Till next morning."

"All right. Give me the name and address of the girl you were with."

"No girl. Me with father and mother," said Joe sullenly.

"Ah, a home body! All right. Let's have your father's name and address."

"His name Takashi Kato."

"Where does he live?"

"Twenty-five Grand Street."

"And you spent every Monday night at home?"

"Yes, sir. Except doctor need me here."

"That's the reason Metcalfe chose Monday night to put McKibben away." He knew the coast would be clear. Now another thing, Joe. What kind of pistol did Metcalfe have?"

"Him never have pistol," said the boy quickly.

"Do you mean to say that you have never seen a pistol anywhere around here?"

"Him never have pistol."

"How can you be so sure?"

"Me never see pistol all time I been here."

"That doesn't prove he never had one," Duffy pointed out. "Now you stay right here. We're going to take a look around."

The detective and the columnist proceeded to a systematic search of the apartment, and presently they found what they were looking for but had scarcely hoped to find. Shoved back on a high shelf in a closet in Metcalfe's bedroom was an old suitcase, and in it were a pair of sued gloves on one of which was a dark stain, a scorched and crumpled towel with a powder-marked hole in it, and a rope-ladder about twenty feet in length.

"That ladder looks Japanese to me," observed Duffy.

It was made of two fine but very steep thin cords, in which rungs of bamboo had been knotted about ten inches apart. He strode out to the library with the ladder in his hands.

"What do you know about this?" Joe asked, and shook it in front of the houseboy's face.

Joe stared at it in evident astonishment—a little too evident, perhaps, Tony thought.

"Where you find him?" Joe asked.

"Come and I'll show you," and Duffy led the way back into the bedroom. "I found it on that shelf up there in the closet. It was in this suitcase. Do you recognize this suitcase?"

"Doctor's suitcase," said Joe. "But he no keep him up here. Keep him in storeroom."

"Oh, he did, did he? And when did you get it out of the storeroom?"

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Sen. Tom Connally of Texas, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, today came out in favor of a strong post-war military force as an instrument of peace.

The State department is reported to have discarded the idea of having the United States join in building up an international police force. Connally took a similar view.

"I have never believed that we should put our troops and equipment under the direct control of any international organization," he said. "I think we must maintain a strong, independent navy and air force to do our part in keeping the peace. We must be strong militarily whether we join an international organization or not."

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director said last week in an address approved by the State department that the United States will exert influence at the peace table only if it has troops prepared to fight.

"NO COMPROMISE" FOR HITLER

Allied diplomats now are putting teeth into Secretary Hull's "no compromise" policy toward Germany until the Nazis bow in defeat. One of the first accomplishments of the Hull doctrine may be complete economic separation of Turkey from Germany. Increasingly firmer policies toward Ireland, Spain, Portugal and Sweden, among other neutrals, also are indicated.

POSTWAR AUTO PRODUCTION

Advance retooling of the gigantic automobile industry for post-war passenger car production was indicated today. Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War production board appointed a new "advisory committee for civilian policy" to assist WPB on reconversion policies.

One of the top proposals before the advisory group is one which would permit auto makers to place orders now for machine tools needed in the reconversion process.

Universal disarmament was proposed more than 200 years ago by Jeremy Bentham, British jurist, as a means toward world peace.

AWOL Mongrel Pup, Goes On Last Airplane Trip

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 15.—A pilot scattered AWOL's ashes over Bellefonte airport today.

AWOL was a saucy, choosy, mongrel terrier, a stray who took a fancy to flying, became the pal of Army Air Force cadets at Pennsylvania State college and refused to the patted or fussed over by other soldier trainees, or civilians.

At first AWOL attended classes. Then he began riding a trainees' bus to the airport, daily, and going up. He had 10 hours' flying credit, and the log book says he "never was nervous or jittery."

One day—only one day—in the thick of winter he missed the bus, so they named him AWOL.

The other day he went hiking with the cadets, and an automobile killed him. He was cremated, and Carlisle W. Taylor, civilian manager of the airport, took him on his last flight today.

MANSION BECOMES CATHOLIC CHURCH

Mellon Estate Dismantled And Transported to New Kensington

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa.—The fabulous Richard B. Mellon mansion of Pittsburgh, torn down in 1940, has been again—as the Catholic church of St. Peter on a hilltop overlooking this industrial community.

The house, once owned by the Pittsburgh banker-brother of former Secretary of Treasury Andrew Mellon, was dismantled after the city of Pittsburgh refused to accept it as a gift that involved waiving the $13,000 yearly taxes.

Father Nicola Fusco, large, stocky, 55-year-old priest, long had urged a new church because old St. Peter's was cramped with its growing congregation.

A former ward working for the Mellons finally persuaded him to visit the house, and out of that visit came the new St. Peter's.

A wrecking crew, paid by the church, dismantled the 65-room mansion, and for six months trucks hauled it piece by piece the 20 miles from Pittsburgh to New Kensington.

But Father Fusco, with his love for fine marbles and sculpture, removed these objects himself with the help of his building superintendent.

Every one of the 5,500 of the congregation had a hand in the building, and doctors and lawyers labored beside the workmen of the parish.

The mansion's brown stone, was used for the outside, and red granite foundation stones became steps to the entrance. Nothing was thrown away. Even the carved oak panels of the dining room were turned into confession booths.

St. Peter's will be dedicated the Fourth of July.

Then Father Fusco and his flock will go to work again. They had enough material left over to build a school and a rectory.

How yours truly got out of the "ower class"

I USED TO BE the kind of a guy who was always on the owing end of the deal.

I owed on the wedding ring. I owed on the house and the car and the furniture.

If I was even with the grocer, I owed the gas man. If I was even with the gas man, I owed the grocer. Golly, I got tired of it. (And so did the grocer.)

But, it's all different now!

After Pearl Harbor, I started buying War Bonds on the Payroll Saving Plan. Every pay day, regular as clockwork, I lent 10% of what I was making to Uncle Sam. Knew he needed it to win the war... and this Payroll Plan was the simple, easy way to do my part.

What's more, it's automatic. Keeps me buying Bonds regular, instead of forgetting and frittering away the money somewhere else.

Well, sir, I soon found out I could afford putting this money in Bonds. I'm making better money these days, and there's a darn sight fewer things for me and the missus to spend that money on. So, I'm actually coming out even, Bonds and all.

And the other night, fingering over those nice crisp War Bonds, I said to the missus: "For once," I said, "we got somebody owing us money. And that somebody is Uncle Sam. He's promising to pay us back $4.00 for every $3.00 we put in these Bonds. And, just between you and me and the lamp post, there's no surer promise in the world."

"My," said the missus, "why don't we try to buy more of those Bonds out of your pay? I could do some paring down here and there. Let's see if we can't make it 15% instead of 10%."

We did it, by golly! AND SO CAN YOU!

Two Salem Teams Enter Playoffs In Little City Cage Tourney

Recreations, Strains Among 10 Basketball Teams Which Have Survived Early Play

Two Salem teams placed themselves among the 10 remaining contenders for the Little City basketball title last night at the Memorial building by winning their respective games.

Winners in the evening's nine tussles were Salem's Strains and Recreation, the Akron Steinbergers (two games), the Howland A.C., New Castle, Uniontown and Warren Leas.

Two other teams, Fairview and Camp Reynolds, haven't played any games yet but will meet this afternoon to determine which squad enters the playoffs today. Camp Reynolds, an all-service entry, put in their bid early yesterday and asked to be allowed to play all their games today.

Eliminated last night were Brewster and Roberts, East Liverpool, Kent, Akron Borders, Steubenville, Campbell, Canton Urban League, Robertsville and the Canton 20th Century club.

Ten games were scheduled today, the first starting at 12:15 p. m. The playoffs will run through the afternoon until 6:15 and play will be resumed at 8 p. m. when the two consolation teams will meet before the title contest at 9.

Highlighting yesterday's play was the performance turned in by two top-notch squads in the tightest battle of the evening, Salem's Strains, composed of stars from the Akron Firestone professional squad, put the finishing touches to a strong Negro Urban League team, 42-30. Terjesen, lanky pilot man for Strains, turned in the high-scoring exhibition with 16 points and Sims hit the hoop for 12 of Canton's scores. Strains led all the way, but the going proved plenty tough in the final minutes of the third quarter and the early portion of the final.

Raynes In Uniform
The Recreations eliminated East Liverpool's Ex-Highs in a stiff game, 45-38. Sgt. Clay Raynes, former Saleh High star, led the locals with 14 points while Chubby Bob Patterson paced Liverpool with 13. The Recreations were never headed during the game.

Akron's Class A champs, the Steinbergers, had no trouble in downing the Youngstown Brewster entry 61-30. It was 17-7 at the end of the first quarter and Akron ran the score to 40-18 by the beginning of the final. The Steinbergers in their first appearance here definitely established themselves as serious bidders for the crown tonight. Becker, Martin, and Montgomery monopolized Akron's scoring.

Two games in one evening proved little more than routine for Sharon's entry as they started the evening by eliminating Kent 37-27 and then closed the night with a 54-39 win over Canton's 20th-Century. Gladys led Sharon in both games, getting 16 points in the initial try and 14 the second. Tuttle made 11 for Kent and Bosello collected 17 for Canton.

New Castle Impressive
New Castle continued their impressive showings by trouncing Steubenville 62-20.

Johnstown-Howland A. C. squad beat the Akron Borders, 35-27, to work their way into the playoffs today. Cross garnered 14 points for Howland while Scott led Akron with 11.

Unknown took Campbell 58-35 in spite of Kukur's 19 points, the highest individual total of the evening. Navy of Uniontown almost matched the Campbellite with 18 points. The victorious Uniontown group, composed of Akron university stars, led throughout the contest.

Warren's Leeds, paced by high schooler, Gene Rossi, with 17 points, marked up their first tourney win 51-42 over a stubborn Robertsville crew. Broden was close behind Rossi with 15 points.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON

NEW YORK, April 15—College football coaches (at least some of them) are coming around to the idea that it's time to un-freeze both the rules and their association before the pros take advantage of this wartime hibernation to assume gridiron leadership. Lou Little, who is heading a campaign to eliminate such obvious abuses as the offside kickoff, reports numerous responses favoring more activity by the coaches. "as he explains it: 'If football is as important for training as they tell us it is, why shouldn't we be active in all branches?' Lou thinks the restoration of the tee would improve kickoffs, but Rev. Arnold Fenton, the booting expert, isn't so sure it's necessary. The difference is mostly psychological, the reverend maintains; the kids have trouble lifting the ball when one end touches the ground. anybody who ever topped a brassie shot after making a good drive can understand that.

A ROOKIE A DAY

Emery Hresko, Detroit pitcher—When Scout Wish Egan signed this 17-year-old, "Jim" (that's the English version of Hungarian "Emery"), took part of the bonus and paid off a mortgage on the family bungalow in Flint, Mich., his home town. When Manager Steve O'Neill of the Tigers tried him out, Steve said: "I caught Feller and when I first caught Hresko I couldn't help but think of the day Bob fanned eight Cardinals in three innings. Hresko isn't fast, but he's got plenty of speed and a better curve than Feller had when he first came up." Enough said.

DEAD EYE ED

During the N.C.A.A. swimming meet at Yale, Starter Ed Kennedy gave the usual warning about firing a recall shot in case of a poor start in the 220. The start was bad but the six swimmers failed to heed the second shot. Ed fired three more and all but one of the swimmers halted. A spectator, awakened by the barrage, turned to Dan Mulvey of the New Haven register and asked why the sixth man kept on splashing ahead. "Heck," replied Dan without cracking a smile, "Kennedy must have missed him."

Reds Show Wares To Hometown Fans

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, April 15—The Cincinnati Reds take their initial bow of the 1944 season before the hometown folks today in an exhibition game with the Cleveland Indians. Nothing spectacular is expected either on the field or in the stands as the Cincinnati fans are saving their enthusiasm for the season's opener here next Tuesday against the Cubs and the Reds have thrashed the Indians three times already this year.

The Reds made it three over the Clevelanders yesterday at Dayton, O., to run their unbeaten string to five for the season. Elmer Riddle and Bob Katz, a rookie, pitched for the Reds, allowing three hits to win a 4 to 0 victory.

Riddle started and finished six frames allowing the Indians all of their hits.

The Reds began scoring in the first, getting one run on three hits off Red Embree who gave way to Veteran Vern Kennedy in the fifth. Other Red runs were aided by loose fielding on the part of the Indians.

Heavyweight Champ In London

Former Football Player Is War Hero

Capt. Maurice L. Britt, of Fort Smith, Ark., former college and professional football star, is now the holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor. Britt, who lost his right arm in action, was given the award for repulsing a German counter-attack with a handful of men during the Mt. Rotundo battle. He is shown at left as he looked while playing football with the Detroit Lions and at the right as he was recently photographed at Lawson General Hospital in Atlanta, Ga. (International).

Spring Training Camp Briefs

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, April 15—Bob Katz, a 4-F Dayton, O., semi-pro pitcher, chucked a $102-a-week job to try and win a berth with the Cincinnati Reds. He made the grade yesterday before a hometown crowd by helping the Reds shut out Cleveland, 4 to 0. After Elmer Riddle set the Indians down with three hits in six innings, Katz came in and won himself a steady post by twirling three hitless frames.

With the opening of the season only three days away Skipper Bill McKechnie of the Reds, probably is glad to have Katz as insurance should his more experienced twirlers falter.

Other major league tidbits: PHILADELPHIA A's—Manager Connie Mack asserted his club is "not a world beater" but "believe we'll make up for that in spirit" which was lacking last year.

WASHINGTON SENATORS—George Case, who usually gets only singles, banged out a triple against Buffalo yesterday.

NEW YORK YANKEES—Veteran Catcher Rollie Hemley announced he would join club at Boston for opening game.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS—George McQuinn and Vern Stephens hit successive home runs off Cardinals' star pitcher, big Mort Cooper.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS—Mort Cooper was hit on left shin by line drive, but Manager Billy Southworth said the injury wasn't serious.

CHICAGO CUBS AND WHITE SOX—Two up on Cubs in city series.

ST. PAUL MINN.—Charles Comiskey, 11, who will become owner of the Chicago White Sox on his 21st birthday, will be graduated from the St. Thomas Military academy on June 3. He plans to enter the Navy's V-12 program in mid-June. He recently reached his 18th birthday.

Pepper Martin Might Restore St. Louis Cards' Lost Color

AP Features
ST. LOUIS—Recalling the Gas-house Gang would make it seem there's more to the return of Pepper Martin to the St. Louis Cardinals than just the acquisition of a 40-year-old veteran to fill a wartime need for players.

In the breakup of the old gang that included Martin, Dizzy Dean and Frankie Frisch, the Cardinals lost the flash and fire that made them one of the most spectacular teams, on and off the field, in baseball history.

A long-time observer of the Cardinals points out they have done all right in recent years, with two National league pennants and a world championship, but the team has been drab in its efficiency.

"In the old gashouse days," he comments, "you never knew when hell would break loose, but you knew that certainly it would shortly. In contrast, the present Cardinals have been more like a well-chaperoned Sunday school class."

The Wild Horse of the Oase, running loose on the range again, could help restore some of that lost color. Martin, no "lammy divy," was a one-man show wherever he went, whether it was making one of his head-first slides on the bases or acting as maestro of the Mudcats, the Cardinals' famed hillbilly band.

Usually unheaven, his uniform dirty, he looked like a tough guy from the other side of the tracks and he had much to do with inspiring the Gas-house Gang description of the old Cardinals. He played gashouse baseball, too, reaching his peak in the World Series of 1931 when he was the one-man destroyer of the Philadelphia Athletics that autumn.

Lew Fonseca, director of the American League service bureau, led the American league in batting with .369 in 1929 when he was an infielder with Cleveland.

The wild horse may be aged and spavined now but he's still colorful enough to do the Cardinals a lot of good, even if he misses his goal of playing in 80 games this season.

MAJOR BONG

different at all since he shot down two enemy ships in the Hollandia New Guinea area Wednesday to break Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's World War I record of 26 planes shot down in air combat.

"I don't feel a bit different," he remarked, "except that I'm pretty miffed over all this—especially over all this business." He referred to the business of being interviewed.

One reason he was miffed, he admitted later, was that he had planned pasting a new photograph of his girl on the nose of his fighter plane this afternoon.

"I'd be doing it right now if it wasn't for you guys," he said in the direction of newsmen.

Bong's sweetheart is Marjorie Vattendahl, Superior (Wis.) State Teacher's college student. The last plane he had his picture on was lost by another pilot when an engine conked out, forcing the pilot to jump.

Newsmen told Bong he soon would be submitting to radio interviews and probably would be selling War bonds. He winced and countered that he just wanted to keep on fighting—in the air.

The art of brewing beer was supposedly introduced into England by the Romans.

NAZI ARTILLERY AIMED AT YANKS

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, April 15.—The Germans, intensifying their activity in the upper Garigliano sector of the main Italian front, shelled one area for more than two hours yesterday and attempted infiltrations of the Allied lines but the attacks were frustrated and other sorties broken up after some fighting, headquarters announced today.

The two-hour barrage was concentrated in a sector south of Sant' Andrea, about eight miles southeast of rumbled Cassino, and the infiltrations were attempted north and east of Sant' Ambrogio, which lies about a mile nearer Cassino.

Allied patrols were active on all fronts, inflicting casualties, a communiqué said.

Allied planes hitting at German bases in Italy flew 1,400 sorties yesterday, climaxed by heavy and medium bomber blows against the west coast ports of Piombino and Santo Stefano last night.

Medium bombers blasted an airfield at Viterbo, north of Rome, and also blasted the rail yards at Livorno (Leghorn) and rail bridges at Certaldo, Bucine, Arezzo and Cecina.

Five Allied planes were lost during the day, the communiqué said, and four enemy craft were destroyed. More than 70 enemy planes were active over the battlefield during the daylight hours.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 15.—Toledo's Frazier Reams, campaigning for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, has turned his guns on the State liquor department.

The former internal revenue collector said in a formal statement last night that if elected he would "clean the rats out of the (Ohio) liquor setup and fumigate the department."

He said he referred to the situation disclosed in the federal indictment of two alleged representatives of a liquor dealer's organization on charges of engaging in the wholesale liquor business without a basic permit.

(Clay E. Hicks, secretary of Ohio Taverners, Inc., and Myers C. Ackerman, Columbus tavern operator, were indicted Thursday on charges of wholesaling liquor without a permit, selling alcoholic beverages above OPA price ceilings and with collecting more than $300,000 from "liquor" permit holders, "some of which" was used to purchase whisky.)

Reams asserted that the charges, if true, amounted to defrauding Ohio permit holders.

Don A. Fisher, state liquor director, said there were no violations of state law or regulations in purchase of the whisky.

"When we were appraised of the deal," Fisher said, "we ordered a refund of all above-ceiling price funds collected."

He explained that the merchandise was held in the warehouse until all refunds were made.

Ohio Fliers Missing

KEY WEST, Fla., April 15.—The Navy reported today that Harold L. Waites of Winchester, Adams county, O., and Warren M. Turner of Oxford, O., were presumed lost in a trainer plane listed as missing from the Boca Chita naval air field. Search planes discovered an empty life raft and floating wreckage of the trainer 15 miles off the coast.

Individual Salvation First, Speaker Urges

COLUMBUS, April 15.—Evangelists should place emphasis on the message, rather than methods of delivery, a veteran churchman told the National Association of Evangelicals last night.

Dr. Bob Jones Sr., of Cleveland, Tenn., founder of Bob Jones college and for 45 years a prominent evangelist, said the major objective of churchmen should not be saving civilization, but the salvation of the individual.

In yesterday's report to the convention, Dr. Harold J. Ockenga of Boston, president of the association, said "the great trend in the world is toward secularism and organized atheism on the part of government."

Later in an interview Dr. Ockenga asserted that a tendency toward atheism and secularism was noticeable in western countries, "including our own."

Vatutin, Russian General, Succumbs

LONDON, April 15.—Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin, 42, one of Russia's outstanding army leaders, died last night after an operation in Kiev, capital of his native Ukraine, into which he had led liberating Soviet troops.

A Moscow radio announcement did not state the nature of the operation. Vatutin recently gave up command of the First Ukrainian army due to illness.

The broadcast praised Vatutin as "one of the most talented young army commanders who had developed during this war."

His outstanding victory was recapture of Kiev last November, when he had 50 bridges thrown across the Dnepr river under heavy German artillery fire, and sent his troops scaling the heights into the city and into flanking movements around the capital.

Vatutin, called "the hunter" by his soldiers and also nicknamed "Lightning" for the speed of his advances, also had a large share of the glory in the Stalingrad triumph.

Marshak announced March 5 that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov had succeeded Vatutin on the First Ukrainian front.

A monument will be built in his memory in Kiev, today's announcement said.
